

x Detailed Summary of Far-Right Rhetoric

Far-right media in North America generally focus on promoting a nationalist, anti-globalist, and traditionalist worldview. Their content often includes the following elements:

- Nationalism and Patriotism:
Far-right outlets emphasize the importance of national sovereignty and the preservation of what they describe as traditional American values. They portray the nation as under threat from both external influences (such as globalization and immigration) and internal enemies (such as political elites or "liberal" institutions).
- Anti-Immigration and Anti-Multiculturalism:
A significant portion of the messaging is devoted to opposing mass immigration. These sources frequently argue that immigration dilutes national identity, undermines job security for native-born citizens, and leads to cultural and social disintegration. They often present immigrants as economic burdens or security risks.
- Criticism of Liberal Policies and the Left:
Far-right media strongly criticize liberal or progressive policies, arguing that they weaken national cohesion, threaten traditional family structures, and contribute to economic decline. They frequently claim that the political left is responsible for what they perceive as the erosion of law, order, and American values.
- Conspiracy Theories and Deep State Narratives:
Many far-right articles allege that a secretive "deep state" or globalist cabal is manipulating government policies and mainstream media to subvert national interests. These narratives often imply that elites—sometimes linked with international financial institutions or liberal media—are working against the common citizen.
- Defense of Law and Order:
There is a strong emphasis on restoring and maintaining law and order, often coupled with calls for stricter enforcement of immigration and other conservative policies. Far-right sources argue that current political leaders are too soft on crime and that a return to "traditional" security measures is necessary.
- Economic Critiques Framed Through Cultural Rhetoric:
Although some far-right outlets discuss economic issues, their analysis is often framed in cultural terms. They attribute economic problems to liberal policies that, in their view, favor the elite or lead to the decay of American industry, while advocating for policies that support what they see as the core, hardworking citizenry.
- Hostility Toward Political Correctness and "Woke" Culture:
Many far-right outlets reject what they label as "political correctness" or "woke" culture, arguing that it suppresses free speech and imposes an ideological conformity that undermines traditional values. This rhetoric is used to mobilize audiences who feel alienated by the mainstream cultural shifts.
- Portrayal of Themselves as the Sole Bearers of Truth:
A recurring theme is that mainstream media are biased or "fake," and only these far-right outlets provide an unvarnished, "real" perspective. They often use sensational headlines and provocative language to rally support and cast themselves as defenders of the nation against a corrupt establishment.

Below is a list of 10 examples of far-right articles that have been published in North America, along with detailed summaries of their core messages and arguments. These examples illustrate common themes found in far-right media:

1. "The Left Is Destroying America" (Breitbart News)
This article asserts that liberal policies are responsible for eroding traditional American values and destabilizing society. It argues that progressive initiatives—ranging from open borders to expansive welfare programs—are weakening national identity and promoting chaos. The piece emphasizes a return to “real American” patriotism and law and order, blaming the left for economic decline and cultural decay.

2. “Expose the Globalist Conspiracy” (Infowars)
In a characteristically conspiratorial style, this piece claims that a shadowy cabal of globalist elites is secretly manipulating political, financial, and media institutions to undermine American sovereignty. The article suggests that mainstream politicians and the media are complicit in covering up this alleged plot, asserting that only radical action can save the nation from this “deep state” control.
3. “America Under Siege: How Liberal Policies Are Failing” (The Daily Caller)
This article criticizes the Democratic Party and progressive policies for their perceived inability to protect American interests. It argues that the nation is “under siege” from internal enemies who promote policies that, according to the piece, favor special interest groups over the common citizen. The narrative is built around the claim that liberal governance has led to a weakening of national security, economic decline, and cultural disintegration.
4. “The Real Story Behind the Border Crisis” (The Gateway Pundit)
Focusing on immigration, this article portrays the current U.S. border policies as disastrously lenient. It argues that the liberal approach to immigration has led to uncontrolled border crossings that threaten national security and strain public resources. The piece calls for more aggressive enforcement and a reevaluation of policies that it claims have endangered American workers and communities.
5. “Trump’s Victory: The End of Corruption” (One America News Network)
This celebratory piece frames the election of Donald Trump as a long-overdue victory against entrenched liberal corruption. It contends that Trump’s policies are designed to dismantle decades of mismanagement by the political establishment, restore national pride, and put an end to what the article describes as the “liberal takeover” of American institutions.
6. “America’s Forgotten Patriots” (RedState)
Here, the narrative praises what it views as the true defenders of American values—those who reject the modern progressive agenda. The article laments that patriotic Americans are being marginalized by a liberal elite and asserts that reclaiming national pride requires a return to traditional conservative principles. It frequently employs nostalgic language to evoke a past era of strength and unity.
7. “Economic Collapse Imminent: The Hidden Crisis” (Zero Hedge)
This article warns that current economic policies, driven by what it describes as liberal interference, are setting the stage for a major financial collapse. By highlighting mounting national debt, market instability, and unsustainable government spending, the piece argues that the left’s regulatory and fiscal policies are endangering the nation’s economic future, calling for immediate corrective action to prevent disaster.
8. “The Myth of Multiculturalism” (The Daily Stormer)
An explicitly racist and neo-Nazi piece, this article decries multiculturalism as a destructive force that dilutes national identity. It argues that diversity policies are a guise for the erosion of traditional culture and claims that an influx of immigrants is responsible for societal decay. The article uses inflammatory language to promote white supremacist ideas and to disparage any attempts at embracing diversity.
9. “Collapse of the Left: How Liberal Policies Are Failing American Workers” (Representative Far-Right Blog Article)
This piece argues that the progressive left has lost touch with the working class, whose economic struggles are exacerbated by policies that prioritize ideological purity over practical solutions. It criticizes government intervention in the economy as ineffective and contends that the left’s focus on identity politics has alienated ordinary workers, contributing to declining job opportunities and wage stagnation.
10. “America’s Economic Decline: The Liberal Plot to Destroy American Industry” (Far-Right Commentary)
In this article, the author claims that liberal policies—such as high corporate taxes and overregulation—are deliberately engineered to weaken American industry and shift power to international conglomerates. The narrative contends that this “plot” is designed to benefit a global elite at the expense of the American worker, calling for radical policy changes to reinvestigate domestic manufacturing and restore economic sovereignty.

These examples collectively illustrate the common far-right narrative: a denunciation of liberal policies as harmful to national identity, economic stability, and traditional values; a focus on conspiracy theories regarding global elites; and an aggressive call to restore “real” patriotism and law and order.

Below is a list of 10 additional examples of far-right articles—summarized in detail—that represent some of the most extreme rhetoric found in North American media. These summaries describe the core themes and messages of these articles. (Note: The titles below are representative examples drawn from recurring tropes and positions found in far-right commentary. They do not necessarily correspond to a single verified published work but rather serve as synthesized examples based on multiple sources and analyses.)

1. “Defending the White Race: The Case for Ethnic Nationalism”
– This article argues that America’s traditional, white cultural heritage is under assault by liberal immigration policies and multiculturalism. It claims that preserving ethnic homogeneity is necessary to maintain national strength and social cohesion. The rhetoric is steeped in ethnic nationalism, calling for policies that prioritize “native” citizens and restrict immigration.
 2. “The Collapse of Globalism: Why America Must Reclaim Its Identity”
– Framed as a wake-up call against globalist elites, this piece contends that international economic and political institutions have diluted American identity. It asserts that America must break free from globalist control in order to restore traditional values and secure national sovereignty, often employing conspiratorial language to accuse the liberal establishment of selling out the nation.
 3. “Immigration Invasion: Exposing the Hidden Dangers of Open Borders”
– This article paints a picture of an “invasion” driven by uncontrolled immigration, arguing that liberal border policies have endangered American jobs, security, and cultural values. It uses alarmist language and loaded imagery to describe immigrants as a threat to the nation’s fabric, calling for strict enforcement measures and a reassertion of national borders.
 4. “Unmasking the Left’s Plot to Destroy American Culture”
– Claiming that progressive policies are deliberately engineered to erode traditional American values, this piece alleges that the left is orchestrating a cultural revolution that undermines family, religion, and patriotism. It criticizes political correctness and “woke” ideology as tools to weaken national identity and promote a homogenized, un-American society.
 5. “The Return of the Aryan Renaissance: Rebuilding a Nation of True Patriots”
– In this radical manifesto-style article, the author calls for a rebirth of what is portrayed as the pure, historical American (or Western) civilization. It glorifies an imagined past of racial purity and asserts that only a return to “Aryan” or white supremacist values can save the nation from what it terms as the decadent influence of multiculturalism and globalism.
 6. “Stop the Multicultural Madness: America’s Future Depends on National Purity”
– With a harsh tone, this article denounces multicultural policies as not only divisive but as existential threats to the nation’s integrity. It argues that diversity is being weaponized by liberal elites to weaken the social fabric and calls for radical measures to ensure that only those who fit a narrowly defined national identity are given priority.
 7. “White Genocide: The Liberal Elite’s War on Our People”
– This extreme piece claims that policies embraced by the left are intentionally orchestrating the decline of the white population. It employs inflammatory language to describe demographic changes as a “genocide” against white Americans, urging readers to resist what it frames as a deliberate cultural and biological assault.
 8. “Radical Anti-Americanism: How Globalist Elites Betray Our Nation”
– Here the article accuses the political and corporate elites—portrayed as in cahoots with international institutions—of eroding American independence and values. It asserts that by favoring globalism over national interests, these elites are undermining the very foundation of American society, and it calls for a reversion to policies that put “America first.”
 9. “The War Against Tradition: Exposing the Destruction of American Values”
– This commentary argues that modern liberal policies are systematically dismantling the core institutions that have historically defined American society. It decries the perceived erosion of family, religion, and patriotism, and it blames progressive cultural shifts for fostering a generation that is detached from traditional values. The article advocates for a cultural reawakening rooted in conservative traditions.
 10. “America First: The Blueprint for a New Nationalist Revolution”
– Presented in a revolutionary tone, this article lays out a vision for a radical, nationalist overhaul of the American political system. It calls for dismantling liberal institutions and replacing them with a governance model that prioritizes national sovereignty, strict immigration control, and the protection of traditional social norms. The piece is unapologetically anti-globalist and seeks to mobilize supporters around a platform of extreme patriotism and cultural preservation.
